FINANCIAL AND BUSINESS SUPPORT

YellowDog provides cloud-based and on-premises workload management services to a wide range of sectors including Financial Services, Life Sciences, AI/ML and Engineering, enabling customers to easily spread their high-compute workloads across multiple clouds and on-premises. The YellowDog Platform is a user-friendly portal, allowing workload scheduling across clouds, and synthesizing of cloud and on-premises compute instances into a single, manageable cluster.

Since the company's founding in 2015, the business has evolved significantly. Their original platform and service catered to the media industry, specifically animation, CGI and visual effects companies. Throughout the following two years, the business pivoted towards other sectors including Financial Services, Life Sciences, and Engineering. To facilitate this, they released a new, more advanced platform and developed their scaling and workload management functionalities.

This achievement, and the ability of their scheduler to cope with such scales, means they are more vulnerable to competitors mimicking the platform's capabilities.

In order to protect their solution from imitation, they wanted to identify elements of their platform which they could patent, register for these, and develop a strategy to ensure future proofing of these assets. This is where their involvement in Intellectual Property for Growth came in.

After a successful application, YellowDog were awarded funding towards commissioning an audit of their IP assets and follow-on funding to implement the recommended actions.

LOW CARBON BUSINESS SUPPORT: BRICKS

Bricks are a charity working with creative, local and social enterprise communities in Bristol and the West of England. They established their community hub at St Anne's House in 2021. By producing public artwork campaigns and delivering collaborative and creative activities, their aim is to build community resilience, foster connections, grow local talent, inspire creativity, and provide a space to test out new ideas.

St Anne's House has many challenges due to its large size, concrete construction and aging energy systems. Any project that they wanted to complete would require large investment and could be disruptive to occupants. However, they have been recently successful in extending their lease on the building, allowing them to plan for the future.

Brick's motivation to apply for support was simple – to reduce the cost of energy bills, improve the appearance of their public spaces, and reduce their carbon footprint.

Bricks were awarded a Green Business Grant of around £14,600 to support the replacement of over 400 fluorescent light fittings with LED panels and occupancy sensors. The £53,900 project is estimated to have resulted in:

- Over £12,300 annual savings on energy bills
- 40% reduction in electricity use
- 39 tCO2e annual reduction in carbon emissions
